

Logline

This simple TV concept explores a particular religion, faith or belief from the perspective of two individuals, who are on the stage asking challenging and provocative questions. This is to an audience who represent the broad spectrum of the same belief.

An example of the type of questions that could be asked from a member of the public on the stage are:

- How would your religion welcome me as a transsexual man/woman?
- As an atheist what do you believe will happen to me when I die?
- I am a pacifist, how is your faith a religion of peace?
- How does kindness fit into your belief?

Who will watch Faith to Face:

This format is designed for a demographic that is curious about beliefs and perhaps feels that there is some confusion about what the faith and beliefs do and do not say. We anticipate it will become a programme that explores issues like rights, responsibilities, prejudice and equality.

The Jeopardy of Faith to Face:

- Are all the faiths and beliefs predominantly heading in the same direction?
- What are the major divides that appear in your belief system?
- The uncertainty and unpredictability of the responses given.
